Series Three comprises a most important collection of ideological and cultural journals published by the Communist Party Of Great Britain or on its initiative.

The first of them, Communist Review, called The Communist (not to be confused with the newspaper of the same name in our Series 2: Newspapers 1916 – 1929) in 1927 - 1928, was designed to be a monthly theoretical journal dealing with problems of political strategy and tactics. Communist Review re-appeared again in 1946.

At the end of 1953 Modern Quarterly and Communist Review both ceased publication, and a new journal, Marxist Quarterly, was published by Lawrence and Wishart from January 1954 to January 1957. This was followed in October 1957 by a new official monthly from the Communist Party, Marxism Today. The new journal covers a wide spectrum of ideological problems in political strategy and science and culture.

The series as a whole covers all aspects of Marxist-Leninist ideology with considerable treatment of the International Communist and general revolutionary movement.
